

Our Guest Speaker

Ian Moore is a Senior! A Senior who is active.

He is so active that he chases storms - not just ordinary storms but those HUGE lightning bolts striking through cumulonimbus cloud type ones. Imagine standing within striking distance of a supercell storm structure, or being in a hailstorm with Pickleball-size hailstones!

Call these storms tempests, whirlwinds, snowstorms, tornadoes - the more ferocious, the better.

Storm Chasers are driven by various motives - curiosity, adventure, scientific investigation, and, as we have seen in newscasts, media coverage. Ian is a storm photographer, and more. His curiosity and pursuit of the storm drives him forward.

As an enthusiastic photographer, with a preference for landscapes, seascape, travel, long exposure and sport photography, his passion for the storm brings fun and excitement into his life. In fact, he enjoys being a storm tourist, that is, he connects with others and goes on storm tours with experienced guides.

His eye for detail is precise — his creative muse is strongly evident in his brilliant photography. We will have the privilege of viewing such moments as Ian shares his excitement of the storm chasing journey with us, the beauty and the awe; the intrepid moments of capturing that light, and that whirl of wind creating irresistible shapes across the sky.
